INTERESTING CARMEL

Interesting things about Carmel

WM. RITSCHEL, PAINTER OF MARINES EXTRAORDINARY

"Art is the only thing that will make for happiness and education of a nation," said William Ritschel, as we seated ourselves before one of his masterpieces, the first o fseveral that we had the extremely good fortune to view and study at a private showing Monday afternoon this week at his home in the Highlands. And to quote again, "A country may have the greatest industrial plants, be the richest and most powerful of all nations, but if it leaves no art it is soon forgotten." These two statements, brief as they may be are almost the complete story of Ritschel's life devoted to the end of leaving behind, his interpretation of the beauty, the majesty and the power of the sea.

"It Is I Be Not Afraid," was on his easel when we arrived—a powerful picture of Christ walking on the waves—the figure of the Master in a golden halo in the middle plane of the picture, with the figures of the boatmen crouching in fright in the fishing vessel in a murky foreground.

"A picture without a message is wasted," explained Ritschel, deftly sliding a great five-foot canvas on his easel. "A picture without a message is just craftsmanship—something that almost anyone may accomplish with practice." And what a message this canvas, "Sunlit Shores" carried. The glint of sunlight was everywhere. In the white foam of the breakers, the quiet pools around the cool dark rocks and in the rocks themselves you caught the feel and warmth of boundless sunshine. In contrast to this picture was "The Storm" a picture he explained that has the "discordant harmony" of a storm on the sea. In this was all the power of great crashing waves, the towering fountains of spray and withal the impression of a cold, merciless, devastating strength. And then another contrasting mood of the sea, "Monoliths"—a picture of moonlight and the night. Great rocks with shadows soft and mysterious—pools and trickles of spray with the indescribable phosphorescent glow of moonlight on the water.

There were other and equally imposing pictures that we might attempt to describe at any length and our efforts would be futile. Pictures are created to be seen—not written about and everyone will soon have the opportunity to view a number of Mr. Ritschel's canvases in a one-man show he is arranging to begin January 15th at Del Monte Gallery.

Our visit to Mr. Ritschel's studio-home was a succession of delightful experiences. There was a leisurely hour spent with Mr. Ritschel and his charming and beautiful wife before a crackling fire in a great fireplace at one end of his huge studio-living-room.

"I get no pleasure out of small things," Ritschel explained. "I can express the majesty and bigness of the ocean only in big canvases." And we get some understanding of his feeling for big, spacious things as we visit the setting he has selected for his home and work. All of it is big and has the atmosphere of grandeur. His studio is nearly forty feet square and filled with heavy, beautiful things he has picked up over the world on his various trips. His easel, tall enough and wide enough to carry a ten foot canvas towers high above one's head. There is an eight foot table, massive cabinets and chests, a six foot ship model with a history dating back to 1785, and a profusion of chairs that we know will never break down from use, and we smile at the occupants of two of these big chairs—two cats and believe it or not they are twice as big as the average cat.

And then we spent an hour rambling over the grounds with Mr. and Mrs. Ritschel wherein we saw the fine work of Mrs. Ritschel's creativeness. There has been just the exact amount of improvement made on the natural rocky site to make it perfect. The rock studio tops quite a steep climb; the sides of the hill have been worked over and as we ascended a long winding path we found a fish pond, a fountain with its waters trickling into another pool and by this pool were three statues made of carefully selected pieces of rock fitted together and forming respectively a lion, an alligator and a horned toad. There are rock seats and benches that are surprisingly comfortable and every one of them placed to command an awe inspiring reach of ocean and majestic sweep of hills. There is a roof garden, with a barbecue oven over the garage and more chairs. Farther on the path to the studio topping the hill is a shrine with a small statuette of a Mayan warrier studying the calendar and compass of his people. Through all of this are flowers and shrubbery of every kind in every nook and cranny. The trip through the grounds ended in a walled-in enclosure at the south end of the studio. It was sunset, the hills towered dramatically behind us in deepest blues and purples, before us stretched the limitless reaches of the Pacific, with crimson clouds on a canvass of gray. Below, at the foot of a breath-taking, sheer drop pounded the breakers—Mr. Ritschel swept his arm about him comprehensively, "Beautiful, majestic, indescribable," he exclaimed as though seeing it for the first time.

And so it was. And Mr. Ritschel's hospitality too has in it much of the quality of the surroundings—and we left with the feeling of having spent a delightful afternoon, all too short, and still another priceless possession to us, one of Mr. Ritschel's pictures.

Forest Theatre Withdraws Offer

Committee Now Working On New Project For CWA

The withdrawal of the offer of the Forest Theatre grounds on the part of the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts fell like a bomb in the midst of the spectators at the Carmel City council meeting in called session yesterday morning at ten.

When Carmel was called upon some time ago to approve a city project upon which the government would furnish money to put the unemployed to work, the Carmel Arts and Crafts club offered the theatre grounds as a public park and playgrounds The project was accepted by both state and county committees. Much opposition was met, however, the general feeling being that the maintenance would raise taxes of property owners, rsulting in the withdrawal of the project, with the following letter, by Perry Newberry:

Carmel-by-the-Sea,
Dec. 20, 1933.

"To the Members of the City Council:

"At the request of the Monterey County Civil Works association, the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts sought to cooperate in obtaining federal money in the amount of some $8,000 for the relief of distress among Carmel's unemployed and offered to deed the Forest Theatre to the city to be used as a public park and playground. It was expected that the city would install tennis courts for the use of Carmel's citizens and visitors and that the open-air theatre would be maintained so long as need of it existed, the cost of improvements to be largely met by the federal government.

"It was our belief that the park and playground could be made self-suporting under the administration of a city park commission and the project would make no additional taxes for the city.

"Partly through misunderstanding of the offer, the proposition has been bitterly opposed and the attacks upon the fairness of the offer made by us have been such as to cast discredit upon our motives and on members of the councilmen who have advocated the transfer. The situation promises further moves by court action and injunctions that would serve to hold up the proceedings until too late to take advantage of the CWA offer of federal money, and too late to help relieve our unemployed.

"It is not the intention of the Carmel Arts and Crafts association to further the bitterness engendered, nor does it wish to have the Forest Theatre, one of Carmel's oldest and best beloved institutions, the center of strife and discord. With the best of intentions, it made its offer toward the relief of the very serious employment situation in Carmel. If CWA help is not had for Carmel, it will not be because we have not sincerely tried to accomplish that end as shown by the prompt approval of the project by both the county and the state CWA committees. Failure may not be laid to our door.

"The Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts, a corporation, herewith withdraws it offer made to the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea for the acquisition by the city of the Forest Theatre property.

"Respectfully,
Perry Newberry, President,
Lita Bathen, Secretary."

After a resoultion was passed rescinding the resolution to accept the proposition, other projects were discussed, although Mrs. Hatton, member of the local CWA committee, reported there would be no meeting of her committee until Thursday or Friday of next week and that it was her opinion that any project now would be turned down owing to the shortness of time.

Ernest Bixler, prominent contractor, speaking he said for thirty unemployed skilled workers, stated that they would hold the city responsible for their employment this winter, on acount of the failure of the council to accept the CWA program.

Col. Clair Foster suggested a mass meeting to see whether the taxpayers would be willing to furnish work for the unemployed, the entire cost to be paid by the city. Much objection was met at once by proponents of the park and playground projects.

Attorney Argyll Campbell reported that although he thought the city hall project would be put through under PWA, it would be four to five weeks before work could possibly begin. Mr. Campbell stated that the chief engineer said it was his opinion that there would be no objection and that it was a good proposition. Mr. Campbell also explained that the construction of the city hall would bring no additional taxation, since the present rents would meet the retirement of the bonds. An election would have to be carried out and the bonds carried by two-thirds vote.

The question of the postoffice was also brought up, but it was agreed by all that such a large undertaking could not be gotten under way in less than six weeks were the machinery set immediately into motion. This building would likely have been under way before this time had the city been able to agree as to a suitable location.

R. Markham made a speech in which he said, "When Carmel passes the horse and buggy stage, she will improve her waterfront," and pointed out what other water-front cities had done. Councilman Jordon moved the appointment of a committee of five to draw up plans for the improvement of the foot of Ocean avenue, the building of a comfort station and the making of steps to the beach, as well as any other improvements. Those who will serve on the committee, headed by Robert Norton are Colonel Foster, Frederick Burt, Kent Clark, Hallie Sampson and J. A. Burge.

SAN MARINO MAN SHY OF REGISTRATION CARD

A San Marino man is sorry of his registration card which is in the hands of city authorities, and the man apparently was none the wiser, or sadder.

Officer Charles Guth was called out Sunday morning about three o'clock by a message stating that a car had run into a tree on Santa Lucia. When he arrived on the scene he found an old car with the fender broken, empty of gas, but no evidence of a recent wreck. He slipped the registration card out and reported to the city officials.

Monday when they went to get the car to bring it in, it had been driven away. It is supposed that the owner simply ran out of gas and decided to wait until daylight to go on through. He evidently failed to notice that his card had been "lifted."

CHEST FUND OF $15,000 IS NOW SUBSCRIBED

Contributions today for the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest totalled better than $15,000. The campaign will continue for some time until the $22,000 the chest workers hope to get is subscribed. Those who have not subscribed are urged to do so at once as the chest cannot operate efficiently until the entire amount required is raised.

CARMEL WOMAN'S CLUB NEW YEAR'S PARTY

Carrying out its pleasant custom of giving a reception to the whole town on New Year's Day, the Woman's Club will be at home from four to six on January first at the Girl Scout House.

Men, women and children will be welcome. Refreshmnts will be served and a happy social time is expected. There will be no other general meeting of the club in January.

CARMEL GIVES MAJORITY OF TWO VOTES ON BONDS

Carmel gave a majority of only two votes in favor of the $170,000,000 bonding proposition to furnish water and power to the valleys.

Only 378 voters turned out, 185 voting for and 183 against.

Roland Hayes Coming Soon

Famed Negro Tenor Is Third Number Of Music Society

The name of Roland Hayes has come to be a household name within a few years as one of the great artists of the world. The great negro tenor has sung throughout the capitols of the world before capacity houses, and his art remains the high-water mark of achievement among men singers for many a discriminating listener.

It is an achievement as well for the Carmel Music Society to present so great a singer as Mr. Hayes, which it is doing on Saturday evening, January 6, in the Sunset School auditorium. Tickets are now selling and mail orders from outside points coming into the Denny-Watrous Gallery.

Everything that could be said in adulation and praise of Roland Hayes' singing has been said. The following from two such differing points as Canada and Paris are significant. From Toronto: "There was passion there, but no grossness of feeling held it down. It was noble and distant, as some far-off dream, chiseled in loviest marble." And from Paris: "The triumph of Roland Hayes was complete in his singing of Negro Spirituals, of which he is the incomparable spokesman. He reveals all their pitiful longing, their simplicity which is childlike, and irresistibly touching. Here indeed is the most marvellous apostle of "Black Magic."

AUNT ELSIE CLUB ENTERTAINED AT GUTH HOME

The members of the Aunt Elsie Club of the Oakland Tribune were entertained at the home of Mrs. Edith Guth who is the Adult Advisor for the club. A Christmas program was enjoyed by the whole group which took up most of the afternoon. Each of the members took part in the program, songs, poems, stories and music selections were offered by the members. Then the surprise; the big, beautiful Christmas tree was undraped and the members cheered with joy. Santa Claus had been there also and left an assortment of gifts and boxes of candy for each member.

The program was closed with the members singing Christmas carols and each wishing the others, a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Those present were Emma Ann and Margaret Wishart, Dolly, June and Elizabeth Petty, Lillian and Vivian Ohm, Jean and Charlotte May, Yvonne Mercurio, Elaine McIntire, Leona Ramsay, Joyce Whitcomb, Patricia Armstrong, Clara Walls, Eleanor Hart Helen Wetzel, Pauline Funches and Adaline Guth.

NO LICENSES IN CARMEL SAID MEMBER OF BOARD

"It is my unofficial opinion that no licenses will be granted in Pacific Grove nor in Carmel, even on lots where the sale of liquor is not restricted in the deeds," said a representative of the board of equalization who visited in Pacific Grove a few days ago."

Hopes had been held by some Carmel people that anyone who wished could set up a liquor establishment on unrestricted lots here, there being a few within the business district.

Stores now selling are operating under a temporary permit which will expire January 1.

FIRE ALARM FOR BLAZING AWNING

Probably due to some unthinking youngster having touched a match to the fringe or to someone having tossed a cigarette into its folds, the awning on El Paseo building on the Seventh street side burst into a blaze about eight o'clock Saturday evening and the fire department was called into action.

The fire was extinguished by chemicals. The hose was coupled to the hydrant but was not used.

DOUBLE KEYBOARD PIANO TO BE PLAYED AT DENNY WATROUS, JANUARY 26

The Denny-Watrous Gallery continues to bring outstanding attractions to Carmel. On January 26 the gallery will present Winifred Christie, concert-pianist, playing the Moor Double Keyboard piano. Miss Christie herself is a pianist of established reputation, commanding the respect and attention of large music audiences throughout Europe and the East. 1934 will mark the first opportunity that the West has had to hear the very interesting and significant double keyboard piano.

Emanuel Moor, eminent Hungarian composer and inventor really invented the piano in 1921. The present model was perfected by the Bechstein Company in 1930. The piano has two keyboards placed one above the other as in a harpsichord or an organ. The lower is a normal piano keyboard, the uper plays one octave higher. A pedal couples the two, enabling the performer to play in octaves with on finger, either stacatto or legato. There are many new and long-dreamed-of effects which the new piano makes possible.

THINKS OF OLD HOME AT CHRISTMAS TIME

G. Afana, of Dar Es Salam, born in the town of Bethlehem, the Saviour's birthplace, recalls that at this time of the year, people are making pilgrimages to the Church of the Nativity, built about the manger.

Mr. Afana has many interesting things to tell of his homeland and its customs, many of which remain practically unchanged since the time of Christ.

HON. J. J. McGRATH GUEST OF GROVE C. C.

Congressman J. J. McGrath, of this district, was a guest of honor at Pacific Grove's chamber of commerce meeting and made a talk outlining some of his policies.

The congressman stated that he believed the most important point in American National defense is the Hawaiian Islands. He is also interested in a bill to acquire 750 acres adjoining Moffett Field for the use of the heavier than air equipment to be used in conjunction with the lighter than air equipment now being assembled at Sunyvale.

He said he thought a submarine base might be favored for the area lying between Pt. Pinos and Santa Cruz.

BOB DALTON FIGHTS AT SALINAS FRIDAY NIGHT

By Sports Editor

Bob Dalton and Frank Norales will clash in a four-round match at Salinas Friday night. It should be a great scrap as both boys are mixers and carry a KO punch in either hand. Norales is the best 120-pounder in the Salinas Valley and has been fighting about five years and has lost very few fights. Dalton has only fought a short while but has never lost a fight up to date.

Big Mitch says don't miss this fight as it will be as good as the Frank Dalton-Louie Maize fight two weeks ago. Frank Dalton hurt his leg training and will not be able to fight on this card.

James J. Jeffries will referee all bouts. Big Jim Jefferies and Jack Dempsey are the last of the old champs. Either one in their prime could whip Baer and Primo in the same ring the same night.

It will be one of the best cards of the year, so don't miss it. First fight at eight thirty.

Jack Dalton, local trainer, is taking four fighters to Salinas to participate in te Salinas card on Friday night. They are: Bob Dalton, 120; Del Hawkins, 159; Jack Richards, 146 and Bob Senco, 148.

Another new thing is the patterned glassware wherein the colors are produced by ground glass being glazed in it in intricate designs.

P. O. EMPLOYES BUYING POWER REDUCED

Buying power for the six months ending December 31, 1933, was reduced by $3,060,000,000 deductions from the wages of postoffice employes alone of the federal workers according to an estimate in the current issue of the Union Postal Clerk, official organ of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks.

This statement is based on the estimate that approximate deductions amounted to $51,000,000 and that a dollar in a wage enenvelope turns over at least five times in a month.

This considerable slow-down in buying power, was with slight effect on government expenditures, the article continues, in that only four cents out of every tax dollar goes for the salaries of all government workers.

"If outright dismissal of all federal employes was resorted to as an emergency measure, your federal taxes would remain practically the same," it is said.

With respect to the share of the postoffice department in government expenses, it is pointed out that only two cents of every dollar of federal taxes is expended in connection with the postal deficit. Except for this item the postoffice department is self-supporting.

It is shown that local taxes take 55 cents of every tax dollar, state taxes take 15 cents, and federal taxes as a whole only 30 cents. Out of this last the executive department takes 28.6 cents, the treasury department, 29 cents plus, the war department, eight cents, the agricultural department five cents. The departments of commerce, justice, labor, state and District of Columbia, etc., consume less than two cents each of the tax dollar while the sum of two cents is chargeable to the postal deficit.

According to the Union Postal Clerk, the postoffice clerks alone of the federal workers lost $34,218,000 in the fiscal year 1933 as a result of the furloughs. The 15 per cent wage cut deducted over $20,500,000 more.

The average loss to the individual postmoce clerk will amount to over $200 for the six months ending December 31, 1933.

YOUTH ARRESTED AS HIT-RUN DRIVER

Pat Le Mestes, 17, Monterey, was certified to the Juvenile Court on hit-run driving charges when he was brought before Police Judge Monty Hellam this morning.

LeMestes was alleged to have been the driver of a light truck which crashed into a machine driven by Mrs. Mary Young Hunter, Carmel, at the intersection of Scott and Pacific streets yesterday.

The truck sped away from the scene of the accident, it was charged. A third motorist, Mrs. W. Schenck, Long Beach, gave chase but was unable to overtake the speding truck.

LeMestes was arrested several hours later by Sergeant Dimar Reynolds whose suspicions were aroused when he found the damaged truck parked in New Monterey. The youth admitted his part in the accident police said. A companion, Louis Nonella, was also arrested but later released. —Monterey Herald.

Mrs. Wellington Clark of Carmel Highlands reported to Monterey police that her pocket had been picked when she was shopping in a store in Monterey.

ROWNTREE DEFENDS ARTS AND CRAFTS

Editor Carmel Sun:

May I have the privilege of replying through your columns to the statement of Colonel Clair Foster that appeared in last week's Carmel Sun.

First, I wish to state that the friendliest of feeling has always existed between Col. Foster and myself and I hope it will continue.

Second, this my own expression. I do not represent any group or committee, neither has any one asked me to reply to the statement of Col. Foster. Therefore no one is to blame for any misstatement I may inadvertently make.

I am asking that this letter be printed because I believe incorrect statements have been made which cast reflections on many people. I am not deeply interested for my own sake even though I probably started the entire matter. It is more than likely it eventually would have been started without my efforts.

I am, however, deeply concerned regarding those of our City Council and the members of the various Forest Theatre groups who, it has been insinuated, have been prompted in their actions by hope of personal gain or (its equivalent) removal of personal loss.

These men and women, who I feel have been so unjustly accused, may feel it undignified to reply, but I cannot remain silent when I see an injustice being done or an untruth being broadcast.

Col. Foster is entitled to his opinion as to whether or not Carmel as a city should do what it can for its unemployed, or whether Carmel should have a city-owned open air theatre, but I feel he must have been misinformed or is lacking in information, to draw the conclusions or attribute the motives that he does.

The total amount that it will cost the City to acquire the Forest Theatre property with the proposed improvements is dependent upon the amount necessary to meet the CWA requirements but the total figure it not entirely an additional cost to the City because a large part of the City's contribution is that of supervision and truckage which is not an extra cost but only a transference of activity and a bookkeeping incident.

I do not think it nessessary to enter into the advantages to be gained by the citizens, merchants, and children, by the Forest Theatre being turned over to the City with all the improvements which are to be made.

The point I wish to emphasize is that I do not believe any member of the Forest Theatre is benefited by the transfer to any greater extent than is every one of us who live in Carmel. To infer that the property is being surrended to be relieved of debt is hardly borne out by the facts if my belief is correct, and that is, up to a year ago there was no indebtedness and considering the difficulties other people have had in meeting their financial obligations it does not seem strange that the Theatre should be somewhat in the red, but it does not seem a large amount compared to the value of the property.

It would not appear that the taxpayers are assuming "in perpetuity" any more of a liability than we have in Devendorf Park, the sand dunes, or any other city owned property. Surely the tennis courts can be self-supporting by the collection of a small fee and if the use of the theatre portion is conditional upon a nightly rental it is difficult to see how the taxpayers are undertaking any risk. On the contrary, the city may find the entire property a source of profit.

BERNARD ROWNTREE.
Dec. 18, 1933.

The 11th Cavalry returned to the Monterey Presidio last week after a strenuous two weeks' hike to San Francisco and back. Men and animals made the trip in fine condition and Col. Parker, regimental commander, made the statement that the regiment could make the 130 mile trip to San Francisco in 40 hours if necessary.

The City of Pacific Grove has made application to the government for permision to construct rock jetties at First and Third beaches. Informal permission was immediately granted pending arrival of final authority from the war department.

ANOTHER STATEMENT FROM COMMITTE OF FORTY

Editor Carmel Sun:

The Christmas issue of the Carmel Pine Cone makes a significant announcement to its subscribers. It puts them on written notice editorially as to their intellectual and ethical status in the opinion of the editor and publishers. The level of this status, so established, is approximately that of longshoremen. Editorially it addresses people of about that grade of intelligence.

The Pine Cone's description of Mayor Catlin just about plumbs the depth of illbreeding and mendacity, and the Pine Cone expects its subscribers to take it and like it.

This Yuletide editorial is a defense of the present effort of the Arts and Crafts group to impose their will, their debts and the future expense of their private hobby on the already overburdened taxpayers without even asking the taxpayers permission. It is here submitted that in selecting the Pine Cone as its champion the Arts and Crafts group is characteristically inept, for the editorial in question proclaims a lost cause. No worthy purpose needs to descend to sheer irrelevant vituperation. When people do so descend they merely exhibit an acute case of goose-pimples over the outcome of their plans.

If it were in the heat of a voting contest there might be some political excuse for the Pine Cone's appeal to the ignorant prejudices of a small class of voters. But we are in no campaign for votes; the Arts and Crafts group already controls the majority vote of three councilmen and their voting has been done. That the transfer to the city of the Forest Theater property has not already been made in accordance with that vote is due solely to the fear of the three councilmen that the transfer might not be legal, and that in such event they would be personally liable for the monies involved.

It must be remembered that this scheme to exploit the taxpayers is not new. It was brought up in meeting by Councilman Jordan three years ago but it never came to a vote. Mayor Bonham quite properly laughed it off and told its proponents in effect to go fly their kite. This was the last heard of it until the Arts and Crafts group had three councilmen lined up and some bright mind in the group conceived the idea of capitalizing for the scheme the misfortune of righteousness.

Carmel, it is said, aspires to be "different". Well, Carmel surely will find itself abundantly different when the news services take up the Pine Cone's own misstatement of Mayor Catlin's attitude towards the President. This will look pretty—won't it?—when Associated Press dispatches are printed throughout the country under the heading, "Mayor of Carmel, Calif., hoping that President Roosevelt will break his leg." If the Arts and Crafts group thinks this kind of stuff rates Carmel some money from the Federal Government then this, too, is as perverted in its reasoning as it is in its morals.

No, Arts and Crafts, you would better hire a less bungling champion than a paper that affronts the intelligence of its own subscribers, flouts the taxpayers of its own town, maligns viciously its mayor and makes insulting reference to the President of the United States.

MORE BIDS ACCEPTED FOR CARMEL-SAN SIMEON GRADE

The Force construction company has been given the contracts for grading 3.1 miles of highway on the Carmel-San Simeon project. The new work is between the Molera ranch and Big Sur. The department of public works, although not officially announcing the acceptance yet is understood to have made known the fact the Force company was the low bidder and that work would begin in a short time and very likely employ peninsula men.
